New York Escalar San. I remainder, I remember the hoops my best gal When first I went a sparkin her way back in for when I'd see her home o' nights, I allow the hinder rough To stone along the gotter, 'came the walk with wide enough.'

I remember, I remember the settin' room at bone. When the old folks all hed gone to bed an' left on there stone: To get in spoonin' distance was more's I result to.

I remember, Lemanther how I us' to sweat an A tryle' to figure outs way to best that duried hoopskirt.

An I recken how I fiddled 'round two year an' more that way'.

Afore I got up spunk to ask my gal to name the day.

I wonder, oh. I wonder, if this the truth can be, That the comin' hoop skirt's bigger than the ones I m' to see. An' if it's so I want to live jus, long enough to rienn How the young folks nowadays are goin' to tackle crinoline!

ABOUT HOOP SKIRTS,

Some Timely Thoughts About the Threat-ened Invasion. Philadelphia Times.

It's amusing, isn't it? all this uproar about the possible hoop skirt, especially when one considers that every valuant feminine rebel knows in her secret heart that when the fashion really comes she will calmly surrender and meekly enfold herself in the triumphant crinoline.

crinoline.

There was much the same sort of commotion, in a modified form, you will remember, before the advent of the train. Don't you very distinctly recall lifting your aristocratic eyebrows in mute but emphatic scorn as you saw your dearest friend just returned from Europe sweep forth with quite three inches of dainty Parisian frock dragging on not too clean American pavements?

And don't you just as distinctly recol-And don't you just as distinctly recollect that feeling of nameless superiority which makes obedience to the despots mandate a joy and pride as you, too, swept forth about three weeks later with but one fear to mar your satisfied variety by a might not catched.

later with but one fear to mar your satisfied vanity that you might not catch up that eminently fashionable train with just the proper swing?

Ah, yes, we all succumbed. Those women who prided themselves on devotion to business, to be sure, were the hardest to bring to proper submission and they clung obstinately to trainless, every-day dresses—we do preserve some sense of fitness, you know—but their go-to-meeting gowns, well, "touched," and it was really too funny their go-to-meeting gowns, well, "touched," and it was really too funny to see the furtive way in which those women eyed passing acquaintances, tugging viciously at the dragging gowns the while to see if they noted the igno-minious defeat.

And that's just the way it will be with the oncoming hoorskirt. Even while we solemnly say "Never!" we know that we will, with certain reservations.

know that we will, with certain reservations.

Of course it would be a little too awful too contemplate the consequences of hoopskirt rule among business women. Think of the feminine bookkeeper and her hoopskirt climbing the office stool, and the pretty typewriter in an overgrown bird cage endeavoring to squeeze into her limited accommodations at the machine would undoubtedly cause a panic in the office. The agonies of shoppers have been dwelt upon at length, but think, my friends, of the miseries caused by the shopper's train, and was it suppressed until Dame Fashion in her own good time withdrew it amid prophetic mutterings of a greater eccentricity yet to be. Oh, I've no doubt that the only reason the reign of the trailing herror was so short was because we continually grumbled, even while submitting, and perhaps, if we only grumble enough, the stay of the hoopskirt rampant will also be limited, if indeed it does come, which I don't say it will. I'm only trying to find a if indeed it does come, which I don't say it will. I'm only trying to find a philosophical standpoint from which the hideous possibility—may be viewed without disquiet. The tyrannical rulers of woman's costume are shrugging their shoulders and saying they haven't a thought of harm, which of course we take with a grain of salt and still stand on the defensive, but as we are grumbling prodigiously, and as we have a trifle more individual and independent will than our great grand-mothers had, the terror of 1830 is well mothers had, the terror of 1850 is well nigh an impossibility, for general wear at least. As to a stiffened skirt, and—and—well, say a wire in the hem, why it wouldn't look so awfully bad, would it? and it would be real for summer, now don't you think so? and—well—you wore reeds and a bustle, didn't you?

Washington on His Dignity.

President Washington went to the sessions of Congress in a splendid coach, formed like a hemisphere, with coach, formed like a hemisphere, with gilt panels, on which were carved Cupids, flowers and fruits. This gor-geous vehicle was drawn by six cream-colored horses superbly caparisoned, and supplemented by a coachman and two footmen in white and scarlet liv-ery. The spectacle drew crowds to the street whenever the President passed. On the occasion of receptions Fresident and Mrs. Washington (she was called "His Eminence's Consort") sat on the raised platform like a throne and in a stately way received the salaams of the stately way received the salaams of the people.

The only man who ever attempted to be familiar with President Washington was Gonverneur Morris, who, on a big wager that he wouldn't dare walk up to Washington, slap him on the shoulder, and familiarly accest him, went boldy up in a crowded room to the dignified Goorge. He didn't slap George upon the shoulder, however, for his courage failed him, and he laid his hand on the President and mildly said, "Well, general, you are looking very well to-night." Instantly Washington turned round and gave Morris a dark frown and a dagger look from out his eyes, which made that worthy shrink into a corner thoroughly embarrassed. thoroughly embarrassed.

Fanny Kemble and the Old Farmer. Fanny Kemble and the Old Farmer.

A story is told of the late Fanny Kemble which illustrates one of her characteristics. At Lennox she engaged a farmer to drive her. The old man did not regard himself merely as a coachman and endeavored to entertain her by pointing out the scenery and relating the gossip of the country with the instinct of hospitality that an old resident would show a stranger. "I did not hire you to talk, but to drive," said Fanny, sharply. The old man was silenced. When he sent in his bil there was an extra charge of $5. Fanny demanded what it was for. "Sass," said demanded what it was for. "Sass," said the old man. "I don't often take sass, but when I do I charge for it."

The Best Lemonade.

The Best Lemonado.

Yew Fork Times.

"I learned a new thing," said a woman recently, "while visiting last week an English friend of mine who is living in this country. We had a small dance one evening of my stay, and my hostess served the meat delicious lemonade I ever drank. I spoke of it the next day and she told me it was made with freshly boiled water—the secret, she said, of thoroughly good lemonade.

"I have a regular rule, she further informed me, 'which insures success if I am making a quart or a gallon. For a quart I take the juice of three lemons, using the rind of one of them. I am careful to peel the rind very thin, getting just the yellow outside; this I cut into pieces and put with the juice and powdered sugar, of which I use two ounces to the quart, in a jug or jar with a cover. When the water is just at the tea boint, I pour it over the lemon and sugar, cover at once, and let it get cold. Try this way once and you will never make it any other way."

THE MACKAYE SPECTATORIUM. A Colossal Theatrical Venture at the World's Fair Which Will Be in Keeping With Other Grandeurs.

There have been rumors in the world theatrical that Mr. Steele Mackaye, whose name and originality is known wherever the stage has a place in the community, had conceived a design for a dramatical and musical presentation on a colossal and astounding scale of the times and events of Columbus's first voyage to San Salvador that should not only be novel, startling and original, but should be in harmonious accord with the grandeur of the event that it with the grandeur of the event that it was to commemorate. Those rumors have become facts, and it is now authoritatively stated that "The Mackaye Spectatorium" is approaching completion, and that the various fine arts features of the presentment are also well along toward completion.

The carrying out of this design and production necessitated an outlay of over one million dollars, and this expenditure has been made by the Commbian Celebration Company, which in its personnel contains more names of financial greatness than any company ever organized for a like purpose. Then, too, the personal reputation of such men as Hon. Benjamin Butterworth, George M. Pullman, Franklin H. Head, Lyman J. Gage, Murry Nelson, E. B. Butley, Jr. O. Hinkley, and others of the same social standing, is a sufficient guarantee that the production to be given within the walls of the sufficient guarantee that the produc-tion to be given within the walls of the Spectatorium Building will be in keep-ing with the grandeur of the building itself, which ranks in architectural design and beauty with the best of those in "The White City."
